WE NOMINATE

Bayard Dodge, one of the distinguished educators of his time, who after devoting 35 years to winning and keeping good will for the United States in the Near East has established his home here in the community where he has been known since he earned his first University degree in 1909. Now 61, with unsurpassed knowledge of the complex problems facing the troubled peoples at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, Dodge will long be remembered by nearly 50 different nationalities for operating a laboratory of international understanding in a chaotic world.

It was in 1913 that Dodge, a native of New York City and a graduate of Union Theological Seminary, sailed for Lebanon to become affiliated with the American University of Beirut. A decade later he was inaugurated as president of the remarkable institution that in the next quarter-century was to double its enrollment (1,217 to 2,500) and was to stand at the crossroads of East and West as an outpost of American influence and democratic traditions.

In reality Dodge's domain, including a large secondary school—"International College"—attached to the University, was a miniature United Nations. The students normally represented more than 40 states and at least 18 religious groups, not counting Protestant denominations. A Lebanese Druze, an Egyptian Moslem, a Greek Orthodox, a Persian Bahai, a Spanish Jew might well be sitting side-by-side at the voluntary chapel exercises. In 1945, for instance, the civil engineering faculty listed among others an American, Armenian, Lebanese, Palestinian, Pole and Russian.

Decorated on five occasions by grateful governments and the friend and counselor of the great and near-great throughout the Near East, Dodge believed implicitly in what could be called "education for use," education blending the old and the new and emphasizing a philosophy of life adaptable to the 20th century. The Dodge educational system satisfied both European and Near Eastern requirements and, paradoxically enough, its university diplomas were authorized by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York.

For serving as the exemplar of his own teaching—"the need for hard work, sacrifice and faith;" for insisting, long before policy-makers looked beyond the obvious, that the Palestine question was "basically a moral, religious and spiritual question;" for helping inculcate the spirit of cooperation which is the hope of the world; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

Topics of the Town

Shades of Joyce Kilmer. Since the firing died down around the world on V-J Day, the post-war era in Princeton Township has been marked by almost constant verbal skirmishing. Housing, planning, zoning, consolidation, Sunday liquor sales, school expansion—all have been the subject of heated discussions.

This week, a new development had a number of township residents good & mad. Along Lovers' Lane near Stockton Street, some 20 large trees were cut down upon order of the Township Committee but without the required permit from the Mercer County Shade Tree Commission.

H. Russell Butler, Jr. of 91 Battle Road told TOWN TOPICS this week: "I was informed by the head of the tree surgeons assigned to the job that he had orders to remove every tree within 25 feet of the center of the road. There is absolutely no justification for such procedure: of these large, old trees, some may have been in poor shape but many of them were in excellent condition. Care and selectivity, not stupidity, were called for."

The County Shade Tree Commission investigated, ordered the project stopped, insisted that no simliar work be undertaken unless permission is obtained in advance. Mr. Butler said he was given to understand that the tree removal had been completed by the time the county's injunction arrived but hopes that a few trees were saved. Some of those to feel the axe were well over 100 years old.

Which Way — Continued. The committee's action might become political fodder, as did the surprise removal of a number of trees along Nassau Street when that was widened in 1945. Much riper grist for the mill was the Greenholm matter, on which Mayor Erdman and his Democratic predecessor, Minot C. Morgan, Jr. were hard at it.

Last week, the Republican incumbent climaxed his campaign for the northerly route (John St. to Bayard Lane past Avalon), said it would save at least $33,000, be more efficient, protect property values. Mr. Morgan's reply, reiterating that Mayor Erdman was proceeding without the knowledge of council "in behalf of the few and at the expense of the many," charged:

That the mayor's revelation of the unofficial condemnation figure of $90,500 for the Greenholm right-of-way played squarely into the hands of the property-owners' attorneys, betrayed the taxpayers to the tune of "several thousand dollars";

That Dr. Erdman's plan for eventually eliminating a right-angle turn into Jackson Street would

"Husband Savers." This is not a trade name, but a very apt description of the new wool winder at least as far as knitters' husbands go; and we're sure they would be the first to agree. The winder is a very sturdy, simple and adaptable model and, at $2.25, should be a worthwhile investment for any knitting family.

Consisting of four adjustable arms (stretchable to any size hank) set into a metal base, the winder can be removed by a mere turn of one screw, folded into a single length and packed away until the next time. Its packability also comes in handy for travelling. To use it all you do is hook the yarn over four arms, then start winding —it revolves as fast as you can wind, and before you know it your ball is made. At the Knitting Shop, 242½ Nassau.

"Bob o' Wool." Another newcomer at The Knitting Shop well worth mentioning is Bernat's latest brainstorm. If you're as tired of the ready-made argyles as many knitters and wearers we know, the new handy cards made up specially for diamonds and crosslines should prove most refreshing.

Each card, costing 10 cents, has 20 yards of wool. You can buy your basic color, then choose from 33 wonderful shades for contrasting diamonds. The cards have either the regular sock and sweater yarn or the super baby wool—all of it shrink and stretch controlled. The Knitting Shop can tell you how many cards you need for whatever size and pattern you want. The ultimate cost is about the same as the regular packs, but with the "Bob o' Wool" you can be completely original in your combination. Incidentally, they are also perfect for darning and embroidering.

Sports in Short

Winter Wind-Up. Climaxing an eminently successful wrestling season, Princeton won the 128-pound title in the Eastern championships at Ithaca last weekend when Dave Poor finished an unbeaten season by winning in his weight. He is the Tigers' 16th champion in the last 15 years. The team standings saw Jimmy Reed's men fifth in a strong fleid, with Cornell the only Ivy entry ahead of them. Next year, sports fans are in for an action-packed weekend when the intercollegiates come to Princeton for the first time in a decade.

Shortly after 10 o'clock on Wednesday night of last week, Princeton basketbail hit its peak for the winter as the Nassau quintet whacked inept Harvard to tie high-flying Yale for first place in the Eastern League. Shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the depths had been plumbed and regretably the season ended on that note.

The 66-47 shellacking absorbed from Penn in the Palestra was so complete, the Tigers were so jittery in their shooting, so wide open in their defensive lapses, that no attempt to explain the rout can be valid. All of it may have stemmed from pressure; whatever the cause, the effect was devastating.

The problem, however, is not so much what occurred this season—when a second-place tie behind a Yale team powered by all-American Tony Lavelli was actually achieving the logical goal—but the fact that Penn loses only Captain Bob Carlson from its starting team and that its freshmen topped a good Tiger yearling quintet in Dillon Gym last month. With Lavelli gone, Princeton has been figuring on winning the league crown next year—an achievement that has escaped Nassau court teams since 1932. It will be a tough campaign, but with only Bill Kelly departing from the regulars and two or three good freshmen coming up, the spotlight will be on the Orange and Black.

News of the Theatres

THE PLAYHOUSE

South of St. Louis (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) embroils three Texans in pitched battles to avenge wrongs done them during the Civil War. Joel McRea, Alexis Smith, Zachary Scott in an adequate but unimaginative western.

Mother Is a Freshman (Sun. thru Wed.) sends a 40-year-old Loretta Young to college, where she rivals her daughter (Betty Lynn) in seeking the affections of a young English professor (Van Johnson). The languid plot is always coy, almost never funny. Bright spot of the billing: the first public theatrical showing of tne University's new documentary, "Princeton."

Whispering Smith (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) casts Alan Ladd as a railroad policeman in the days when the iron horse was first spanning the nation. Technicolored fistfights, gunplay, train wrecks and romance (with Brenda Marshall) will satisfy western fans.

THE GARDEN

He Walked by Night (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) is a melodrama with a cops-chase-killer theme. Richard Basehart is good as the ruthless criminal in a well-paced film.

Caught (Mon., Tues., Wed), another in the long series of supposed thrillers based on murder for psychiatric reasons, records Barbara Bel Geddes flight from her crazed husband (Robert Ryan) into the arms of physician James Mason. Told coldly and without appeal.

The Fighting O'Flynn (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) casts Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in a merry melodrama that tells how a fearless Irishman foiled an attempted invasion of his homeland by Napoleon. Youngsters will enjoy the heroics straight, their elders will chuckle frequently at the ribbing given the outlandish plot and the impossible character portrayals.

THE McCARTER

The Traitor, a new Jed Harris production, will open here next weekend before its New York premiere on March 31. Notably, it features Walter Hampden (of "Cyrano de Bergerac" fame) in his first modern role in many years. For further details, see page eight.

necessitate razing two houses currently sheltering 15 persons;

That even at the mayor's figures, the cost of the central route will be only one point on the tax rate for 20 years;

That the mayor is "buck-passing," that some of his statements are "outrageous" and that his proposal should be termed "An Ordinance to Connect Bayard Lane with the First Baptist Church, Create Confusion, Provide Parking Facilities for the Community Players and Open a Playground for the Y.M.C.A.";

That the northern route will be no more than "Erdman's Alley" and that "it is time the members of council pointed out to the mayor that 70% of the area of the borough and 85% of its population lies east of Bayard Lane and Boudinot Street. "These people," commented Mr. Morgan, "work, play, eat, sleep and even vote."

Democrats & Deadlines. Going to press as it does Wednesday afternoon, TOWN TOPICS missed confirming the story that had been brewing since Washington's birthday. Thursday evening of last week, the Democrats reshuffled their slate, named co-editor Dan D. Coyle to head their ticket, picked attorney James R. Sloane and psychiatrist J. Kendall Wallis for council. T.T.'s other editor had gotten himself unavoidably but thoroughly scooped.

Old Firm—New Ads. This month marks attainment by Verbeyst Dry Cleaners of their 50th anniversary, an enviable landmark for any business firm. Located first in Trenton, successively since 1909 on Witherspoon, Nassau and Tulane Streets, it is now managed by Louis Verbeyst. For the first in its new series of cartoon advertisements, scheduled to appear exclusively in TOWN TOPICS, see page 3.

pective brides and their trousseau-building mothers, but it should be of interest to any fine-lingerie-loving lady. The Cummins Shop has just acquired a few (hurry! hurry! hurry!) panels of beautiful Chinese pure silk which can be made into absolutely dreamy nightgowns, slips or negligees.

The panels are all white (which shouldn't bother a bride) with a silvery, damask-like pattern of water lotus and Chinese ducks running through them. Each panel is 78 by 54 inches—more than ample for most lingerie purposes—with every inch washable and, though delicate in appearance and feel, durable.

Flats by Sandler. That ever-good, ever-smart shoe designer and maker, Sandler of Boston, is well represented in the flat shoe line at Brophy's, 78 Nassau. Models new to Princeton are there now; others are, or will be, enroute; and for a solid combination of taste and comfort, Sandlers can't be outdone.

We'll concentrate on two examples. The first is a semi-mocassin, with typical handsewn vamp which cuts down to the sole on the side, rises in back and is held on by an instep-crossing ankle strap. This variation on the traditional mocassin comes in red, brown and green, costs $8.95. The second example is one of the most comfortable ballet-type shoe we have ever worn. This, too, is a variation on the regular style, having somewhat similar sloping sides and high back. The grosgrain edging ends in a small pert bow perched atop the heel. This one comes in black and green suede or navy calf for $5.95.

A VERY UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY!
A lovely, 115-acre farm and remodelled home have just come on the market. The charming house has four bedrooms, two tiled baths, two large fireplaces, paneled breakfast room and many other features you'll love. The barns and outbuildings are in excellent condition, the acreage is highly cultivated and income-producing. A good buy at any reasonable price but very unusual at $40,000.
